Sky Fire is back with the 15th official expansion! Hack the Sky: Master Levels is a total of 40 new levels that take you to a new level of hacking. You can hack all the places that you can hack in the original game. But, the challenge has increased and you must combine the puzzle elements of the game with your hacking skills to get through the challenge. The Master Levels takes hack games to the next level! Features: 40 new levels that take you to a new level of hacking Play all the new levels with all the new character and place combination Can you hack it? Try your best to hack your way to the world's top hacker Complete all the 39 missions of Hack the Sky with the "Taskmaster" Complete all the subquests in the game Infinite number of game levels Party Mode Party with all your friends and go back and forth with one another Countdown Mode Time to outsmart your opponents and send them back to the beginning Rated A Rated M Rated M18+ Overall, I'm quite happy with this DLC. It has just about everything that was in the base game when it was released. Being able to compete with more power players at the higher levels is a nice change of pace and a welcome addition. The vast majority of the missions are still fairly easy and if you are looking for a challenge, you won't find it here. If you've already reached the Master Levels, you're only given a handful of missions that are designed to speed up your progress. These are well done as they all do seem to be ramping up the challenge. The missions in this DLC are somewhat unique and will not be found in any of the other Sky Fire expansions. For the most part, you can just pick up where you left off from the base game. One notable change is the removal of Score Run, which significantly cut down on the time to complete the missions. You will notice some missions that, at the time, were well under the time limit now say "expected completion time", which means that the game is not expecting you to complete the mission in the time limit. This was particularly irritating with the Story Mission: Taming the Dragon, which was one of the missions with the longest completion time of the entire base game. The knock on the DLC is the fact that it seems to reuse c9d1549cdd

RiceDude and mommy say: I always thought that there were more things in heaven and Earth, Horatio, than are dreamt of in your philosophy. - Hamlet RiceDude says: I'm sure some of those people would be sorry if you killed yourselves and robbed them of a chance to 'set the record straight'. I've known some who went insane from delusions like that. Mommy says: I would like to see this film. Me says: I'm already seeing it in my head as I speak! RiceDude says: Me too. You know, back then, a few days after that... the incident... I was kind of in shock. While I was trying to learn how to function again, without any recollection of my past, I did a lot of reading. I came across something interesting: a man who had been trapped in the same kind of situation. Me says: Oh my, I'm not sure that I'm going to be able to sleep tonight! RiceDude says: Yes you are. If you want to escape from it, you have to learn how to stop thinking and block out the voices inside your head. Sleep will do that for you. - I thought I'd find something to tie up the loose ends. Do you think the others are okay? Me says: You know, it's been two days since we landed. And I'm starting to feel a little more sane. RiceDude says: I'm sure the Master will help you recover. He may not be what you think he is. - Wait... Your face! - How could you just leave him? Mommy says: You know, you don't even know what happened. I don't know why you're so defensive about this. - It's been two days since we got separated. They still haven't found us. How long has it been since the incident? Me says: I don't know. A few weeks. Maybe a month. RiceDude says: The story of this man and his condition is a fascinating read. It's been two years since his escape, and he has still not figured out what happened to

Welcome to my Survivor blog! As a Survivor fan who loves writing about both the game and the people I've come in contact with, I find it hard to believe that I haven't been compensated in any way for my efforts. With all my Survivor loved ones gone on to do bigger things in life, I now turn to the second outlet that allowed me to indulge my love of writing about a game that shaped me into the man I am today. The first was the Survivor message boards. I've made a great amount of friends over there, and while most of the chattiness was reserved for official posts, we would always chat about the game -- unless the episodes aired in the middle of the night on a summer day! The second outlet was BroMovin Matt's ASK MOVIN' RULES. Since he's the one who created the site, I'm posting my favorite content of Matt's that I've discovered over the years. Again, he prefers to keep the chattiness offline, but as I said, that only went for official posts, and the others were just MATT, MATT, MATT! Chalk Up Hey Survivors, You may remember a faction from the season that I started to form earlier this season -- the Purple Chix. I've been asking myself why I would be part of this, as we've never really talked. We had both lost Tribal Council before we had met. Why would we be friends? Well, I'm happy to be friends with you, and I hope to continue to be your friend and interact with you. I value our friendship for the past few weeks and want to continue to be friends moving forward. There are many reasons that I'm part of this. For one, I'm a huge fan of the show. I've been watching ever since I was a kid, being introduced to the new friends I have made in the Survivor world. I cherish the friendships that we've developed throughout the years, and want to continue with each of you. I've mentioned many times before that over the past few months, I have been made aware that getting into the game at exactly the right time makes it hard to get into the alliance that you want. I've made many attempts myself to find my perfect alliance in the game, while simultaneously getting into the game, and now I think I've found it. I
