Python: Using tuple.compile to include a regex pattern in a series of if-then statements I'm trying to do some text processing in Python and have been having some trouble with a seemingly simple problem. I have a list of strings that I need to process. I also have a regex pattern. The regex pattern needs to be in the if statement. Normally, I would write something like this: word_list = [] for item in mylist: if item.lower() not in ('stopwords', 'stopword'): 0cc13bf012
